Sharing Wisdom

February 2025

Dear Ladies,

One of the things I love most about doing the WF program is the research that goes into each topic. Usually, I'm familiar with the subject at hand and with that, begin the exploration. But sometimes, researching our topic yields a complete revelation.

Such is the case of Marian Anderson. Of course, I'd heard of her, a celebrated African American Operatic star, but that's where it all ended. My research has unveiled a remarkable woman of extraordinary talent, strong of character yet humble of demeanor, of a deep and abiding faith. Role model and hero.

This year to honor Black History Month via a documentary, we will celebrate the life and brilliance of Extraordinary Woman Marian Anderson.

LUNCH WITH MARIAN ANDERSON, Thursday February 13 at noon. Dillon Library, Bedminster NJ. Admission 20. *To register please see below.

February is also the month of Love! All kinds. Romantic, filial, the love of siblings and extended family and friends, of pets... And, of other different "loves" - those inspired with specific purposes in mind.

Enter a lovely English girl with piercing blue eyes, flaming red hair and a beguiling and intelligent persona. Have her born into the society of the British upper classes, of titles and great land holdings but, in this case, cash shortages. Getting this child well married becomes a primary objective.

And so, begins the tale of how pretty Pamela Digby learned the value of trading love for power and money and the high echelons to which it can lead. Reads like a novel, yes? It's not.

We know her as the legendary Pamela Harriman and her incredible story will unfold in a documentary at our:
